

Play, Challenge, Connect, Relate: 283 Activities to Inspire You and Your Family Into a Closer Relationship

For busy parents who want to make the most of their time with their kids and build lasting memories, this book is a great resource. It features a host of amazing activities for parents and children to do together once that all-important quality time has been scheduled in. In today's modern world, mobility becomes an essential quality in the drive to find satisfying and well-paid work. This means that more and more parents and extended family members are separated from the children in their lives during their vital growing and developing years. For all parents it can sometimes be difficult to know how to begin to build or mend relationships with the children in their lives. If you are looking for some guidance, inspiration and advice on how to spend your quality time with your kids, once you finally have it scheduled in, then this book is a great place to start. It is the companion book to Outstanding Long Distance Parenting, a detailed look at parenting in modern families today and how to maintain outstanding relationships with your children, no matter how far you live or how old they are.
