

How to Enjoy Christmas in a World that Has Lost its Way

Christmas these days reminds me of the song Bob Dylan sang back in the sixties. The title of the song was The times are a changin. Times sure have changed since I grew up. When I was growing up, I learned more Christmas songs in our public school than I learned in our church. Today there is an all-out war on Christianity in America. Each year, there are new attacks on God, Christ, and religious symbols. Public Schools no longer celebrate Easter or Christmas. Some cities are even banning Christmas trees. On the other hand, we tax payers have been forced to fund artists who painted pictures of the Virgin Mary smeared with elephant dung, a cross immersed in a jar of urine, and a picture of Jesus in homosexual experience. Serious followers of Jesus Christ face with a dilemma. On one hand we have to deal with the God haters and their war on God, Christmas, and Easter. On the other hand we want to celebrate the coming of Christ into the world without all of the pagan traditions associated with Christmas. I want to tell you about the worst Christmas our family ever had and how we finally learned to celebrate a Christ centered Christmas in a world that has lost its way.- Gene Keith.
