

Habitat of Grace: Biology, Christianity and the Global Environmental Crisis (ATF Science and Theology Series)

In 1990 the Worldwatch Institute in Washington estimated that humankind had forty years to make the transition to an environmentally stable society. If we have not succeeded by then, it concluded, environmental deterioration and economic decline are likely to be feeding on each other, pulling us into a downward spiral of social disintegration. Worldwatch is no millenarian cult, but a sober and careful organisation whose annual summaries of world affairs have become the planets unofficial environmental health reports. Its pronouncements are cautiously worded, influential and worth attending to, even if the timing is hard to predict. This book uses the issues raised in these reports to look at biology, the environmental crisis and theological response to it all by developing a new theology of creation. Based on her scientific background in the biological sciences, King brings together biology and theology. It covers science, religion and environment, human nature and develops a theology of creation. The author teaches at the University of Waikato in New Zealand.
