

Good Heavens!: Relating a Technical World to the Parish

In six chapters, this book positively relates science and religion to the current Christian parish. The work, part of a series, joins Luther and Copernicus (PublishAmerica, 2009) and applies modern results of 16th century developments in science and religion to the contemporary church. Focusing on the parish, the book provides: analysis of current relationships of science and Christianity; a picture of today's parish; congregational communication; parish education; and suggested directions for the future. The study includes suggestions on Scriptural references, a calendar, educational ideas, with scientific subjects and projects to relate science practically to a Christian parish.
