

Kaplan Reality 101

What have I really learned in college? How capable am I? How will I handle new financial responsibilities from loans to health insurance? What if I hate the job I choose? What if I have to return home and live with my parents? If these questions sound familiar, it's because they are some of the most commonly voiced concerns of college students as they approach graduation. Drawing on the concepts developed in her successful Reality 101 seminar at Roger Williams University, Fran Katzanek offers a wealth of practical advice to help address these and other issues facing college seniors and recent graduates. Plus, frank and lively quotes from graduates offer a from-the-trenches perspective, as they reveal how they dealt with the post-college obstacles that took them by surprise. A rare blend of wisdom and experience, Reality 101 is the perfect companion for students facing the next great adventure -- life after college.
