

Afterlife: Post-Mortem Judgments in Ancient Egypt and Ancient Greece

Afterlife argues that proper conduct was believed essential for determining ones post-mortem judgment from the earliest periods in ancient Egypt and Greece. Part one examines Platos eschatological myths regarding conduct as it affects ones afterlife fate. Part two traces the evolution of afterlife beliefs from Homer to the Dramatists and demonstrates that post-mortem reward and retribution, based on ones conduct, is already found in Homer. Pythagoreanism and Orphism further develop the afterlife beliefs that will have such enormous impact on Plato and later Christianity. The third part examines Egyptian religious texts of the 5th to 18th Dynasties for their understanding of virtues and vices that have afterlife consequences. In part four, the relationship between behavior and the afterlife beliefs of both societies are compared. In the earliest periods, the afterlife texts appear to be concerned only with the elite: the king in Egypts Pyramid Texts and the heroes in Homeric Greece. Nevertheless, we show that, from the earliest times, both societies believed that the gods, primarily Maat in Egypt and Dike in Greece, were responsible for the proper ordering of the cosmos and anyones violations of that order would reap the direst consequencethe loss of a beneficent afterlife.
