

Final Touch

Every day, millions of shoppers crowd into the big discount stores unaware of any danger. Over 30,000 accidents, a multitude of injuries, and a number of deaths have occurred in recent years. This book pulls together the family stories, personal memories and the pain that resulted from what is believed to be the first death in this new merchandising concept into a memoir of an Oklahoma woman. This true story provokes tears, laughter, and thought in its readers.
