His thought when she talks is: will you give me the Cliffs Notes version? Then to add insult to injury he doesn't want to share what went on in his day. She asks: What went on in your day? He responds: nothing much and the conversation dies there. How can they grow together if they don't have living conversations? He has other interests on his mind and they are of the sexual nature. He wants to get physical. He is turned on by a passionate kiss, a little comment, a touch, or nothing at all. She can't understand why that is so important to him.
