

The Cows are Occupying America: 7 Poems to Feed the 99%

These poems are dedicated to the People of America who are facing a new economic reality, including: anyone who has experienced downsizing or the fear of losing ones job; anyone who is getting paid less for doing more; anyone who struggles to maintain a lifestyle where home ownership will remain as a reasonable expectation as part of the American Dream.

Poems may not fix these problems, but they shine a light on darkness, enabling steps to be taken to transform confusion into clarity. Here are snacks from the poets pantry, meant to be inspirational, energizing and nourishing to anyones circumstances. As we all face a new economic reality, some of us must speak out for justice; some will have to take care of their growing family, working to maintain hope and strength, courage and vision, despite looming fear of job loss and an urgent need to learn quickly how to leverage change. Through structured, fun reflection exercises, you will be guided to season your palate for soulful living, savor your sense of humor, shake off your cowness and become aligned with the 99% to claim your identity as another person who is truly free.
