

The Descent of Religion: Its Evolution from Nurturing to Bullying...and Back!

Examining religion as a cultural artefact, Carr-Harris traces the origins of human belief systems from the time reproduction availed itself of the advantages of having two sexes. Throughout this narrative, the author stresses the essential matricentric nature of the human species from its origins in evolutionary biology through its historical and contemporary cultural expression. She provides a sweeping view of our evolution - physical, social and cultural - emphasizing such topics as the evolution of mind, evolving social behaviours, development of language, hominid migrations around the world, Neolithic societies and the impact of theist religions on developing post-Neolithic societies. Carr-Harris also offers some of her own ideas about our future. She was hoping that acquiring an understanding of our entire past would enable us to find viable, sustainable solutions for our future societies. This is an excellent, entertaining and thought-provoking sourcebook for the intelligent conversationalist, and for the student of our human origins.
