Not illustrated. 1883 Excerpt: ... is gravitation, going downwards like a clock weight, and need not to be precipitated. Consider in winter time at 6, we should see the court filled with candles in lanthorns, coming to the Society. But the principal object of my attention in this debate, respects the Antiquarian Society, which will be greatly affected by this alteration. I was a founder of that Society, and am the only survivor of the founders; though I have it at heart, yet now in winter time especially, I can be present there but seldom. Meeting late, and late before the President takes the chair, I frequently am obliged to goe away before any business done. To that, perhaps, may be owing in some measure that I am the survivor in that Society, in this, in the College of Physicians, thereby avoyding the damps, the dews of the night, the rains and other inconveniences, according to the laudable customs of our ancestors. But tis apparent enough if the Royal Society lowers their hour of meeting, the Antiquarians must do the same, and then I can very seldom have the pleasure of meeting them. Lastly, my Lord, tis injudicious to thrust both philosophy and antiquitys into the obscurity of night, on which it is our business to throw all the light we can. After many sorts of perplexed questions, proposed to be balloted for, Lord Charles Cavendish proposed this: whether it be convenient to alter the hour of meeting? I seconded it. By ballot, 19 for it; 32 against it.--Diary, vol. xx., 48. INDEX OF NAMES. The letter after the number of the page refers to the note. Abraham, 55,57. Adulf, Bishop, 37. Aelianus, 4, 5 n. Aelins.
